Summary Overview Mainstream technologies Emerging technologies Comparison of the theoretical and practical potentials of different renewable energy technologies Market and industry trends Policy Finance Renewable energy (also called green energy) is energy made from renewable natural resources that are replenished on a human timescale. The most widely used renewable energy types are solar energy, wind power, and hydropower. Bioenergy and geothermal power are also significant in some countries. Renewable energy installations can be large or small and are suited for both urban and rural areas. Renewable energy is oft...

Solar, wind, hydroelectric, biomass, and geothermal power can provide energy without the planet-warming effects of fossil fuels.

While energy is essential to modern society, most primary sources are non-renewable. The current fuel mix causes multiple environmental impacts, ...

Renewable energy is energy that has been derived from earth's natural resources that are not finite or exhaustible, such as wind and sunlight. ...

Energy is said to be renewable when it's sourced from renewable resources such as the sun, wind, water, or biomass. Renewable energy does ...

The main types of renewable energy are wind, solar, geothermal, hydro, biomass, and tidal energy. Renewable energy is useful energy that ...

Renewable energy, usable energy derived from replenishable sources such as the Sun (solar energy), wind (wind power), rivers (hydroelectric power), hot springs (geothermal energy), ...

We've taken a look at some of the top renewable energy sources -- solar and wind among them -- examining the pros, cons and some of the ...
